

This is just another reminder to those at the FCC who have forgotten: The FCC was created to serve and protect the public, not corporate interests. I'm fed up with corporate greed in this country, but deregulation goes beyond greed, it's about control. This is an issue of controlling the public's access to information. It's already obvious that the rule changes of 1996 should be rolled back, and any further deregulation could only be disast